Flying birds-eye over the Southern Ute Indian Reservation, Southern Ute Wildlife Division biologist Aran Johnson manages the aerial game count annually by helicopter.

Spanning four days each January, the survey tracks the location and size of elk and mule deer populations across reservation lands. While smaller animals are also counted, the focus is on big game, Johnson said.

"The tribe has been flying big-game aerial classification surveys for nearly 30 years," he said.

The greatest benefit of an aerial survey is the ability to track population and herd health trends over the long term, Johnson said. While the State of Colorado manages its own wildlife records in the surrounding regions, it's important for the tribe "to have its own look, a number to base its decisions on," he said.

"The vast majority of animals that winter on the reservation are migratory, and so communicating with surrounding jurisdictions is critical for management region-wide," he said.

Criss-crossing the mountains on Friday, Jan. 6, Johnson and Wildlife Technician Danielle Austin traversed the Vega, Escondido and Carracas units with pilot Mark Shelton, owner and operator of Native Range Capture Services Inc. Shelton and crew have worked for tribal, state and federal wildlife agencies across North America.

Touching down only to refuel, the fly-overs are run with a high level of experience and efficiency.

The Wildlife Division is proud to say it's been able to streamline its efforts in recent years, Johnson said.

10 questions with Chairman Jimmy R. Newton Jr.

By Ace Stryker
The Southern Ute Drum

What factors led to your decision to resign from the Southern Ute Indian Tribal Council and run for chairman?

The experience that I gained over the years of being elected three times to Tribal Council, being a vice chair, and being acting chairman twice. I wanted to challenge myself and see how I could contribute, to see what I could bring to the table.

Were there specific issues you hoped to address if elected?

At one time, we had developed a priority list of things we needed to get done. I wanted to go back to keeping a list, which is our working document. Are we tackling the membership's priorities? The next step is to make a checklist and provide it to the membership as information. I'd like the membership to know exactly what we're working on, and if we're completing those things. I plan on working on new focus groups this spring to determine what our priorities should be.

What was it about Steve R. Herrera Sr. and Amy Barry that you felt qualified them for executive officer positions?

Mr. Herrera was a former colleague of mine. Really, his work performance and dedication to the Southern Ute Tribe stood out. On council, he was here every day, was committed to tribal business, and made good, sound decisions in the chambers. I have a lot of respect for that. For Ms. Barry, the biggest thing that I wanted was having a younger tribal member have an opportunity to serve in a head administration capacity. Because of her compassion for the people and the hard work she's done in the past, combining her with Steve makes a good nucleus for the executive branch.

Why appoint two executive officers instead of one?

My experience here and being on council for eight years is that the organization has grown so much. The job is really overwhelming for one person. To really tackle some of the issues we're facing and to be stronger and more progressive, it helps to have multiple people in that position. It's important that we have stability in that area.

Why was James M. Olguin your choice for vice chairman?

I took a week to decide on the vice chair because I really had a hard decision. I really have a lot of respect for my colleagues. It wasn't a decision made overnight. The wealth of experience he has in the organization — he's worked since he was 17 or 18 with the Southern Ute Indian Tribe — brings a lot of strength in that vice chairman's office. Also, his strength, education and work ethic — he's here every day. People have faith and respect him to work in that capacity.

What are your administration's major priorities going forward?

Services to the membership. That is the biggest thing that I want to tackle. We have to evaluate and assess those services that each department and division has. A parallel goal is to complete key performance indicators. That will really determine where we're at. One target service area is health, because the membership knows we've lost key employees over there. The council is really looking into health services for our membership, because without good health, we can't enjoy other services we like to receive. It's common sense. That's definitely what we're trying to focus on now.

Do you plan to approach the office of chairman any differently than your predecessors?

The biggest thing is having the ability or the strength to work with the council. I want to definitely build a bridge and work with my colleagues and, as the chairman, provide the resources and tools they need. Also, in general, I want to communicate with the council on things that I and my office do. I want to keep them updated so that they understand exactly what this office is doing. That brings support for one another.

What do you think can be done to preserve the tribe's culture and language in the 21st century?

I think it's being done now, as far as our Academy, teachers of the Ute language, the museum, our newly developed Culture & Language Committee. It's out there. It's really aggressive, too; it's positive. The support is out there. Tribal members want to know their language; they want to know their culture. It's happening now. Really, it's supporting those things that can be done right now.

How do you feel about the tribe's current financial direction?

We have our financial plan: That is our guide and our resource. If we follow what past leaders have created, we'll keep that 40-year projection of being financially fit. The key is just reviewing the financial plan and living within our means. Those are normal things that any business or organization would do.

Are there any current policies with which you take issue?

The dress code. I don't evaluate performance on dress. I evaluate performance on work, and the ability to work. I want to be judged on my work ethic and not the shoes I'm wearing. I believe in self-expression, too.

Wolf and coyote

One day the wolf saw the coyote carrying a bag with him, so he started out after the coyote and asked him what he had in the bag he was carrying.

But the coyote didn't want to show him what he had in the bag and he started running from the wolf, so the wolf chased him around and around. Finally he caught him, then he told the coyote to take out the things he had in the bag.

When he did take them out, they were all little people. He took out quite a few of them, and finally the coyote closed the bag really fast, and left very few in the bag.

The old man who told this story said that this was the few amount of people that are left here, as the Southern Ute people are now. He said if the wolf hadn't done this to the coyote there wouldn't have been so few Indians left here; there would have been more people today.

After all this had been done, the coyote told the wolf, "Now go and make your arrows. Now there is going to be a war."

The Kidney Corner:

Exploring edema

By Dr. Mark Saddler
Durango Nephrology Associates

Edema is the term used to describe swelling of the body due to accumulation of fluid.

When it is severe, this swelling is usually very obvious, showing up as swollen ankles and legs and occasionally a puffy face. Extra fluid accumulating in a patient's body usually is seen in the ankles, since gravity tends to make it flow downward.

So we usually test for edema by gently squeezing a patient's lower shin with a thumb or finger; if this pressure leaves an indentation, it is a sign that edema is present.

Symptoms of edema include a feeling of fullness of the ankles or legs, inability to put on shoes because they are too tight, and puffiness of the face.

A serious form of edema occurs when the fluid accumulates in the lungs. This "pulmonary edema" causes shortness of breath and tends to be worse when a patient lies flat in bed. Standing up sometimes relieves it.

The shortness of breath caused by this fluid in the lungs can be very distressing, and patients might say it feels as if they are drowning — which indeed they through loss of protein in the urine or through chronic kidney disease.

In addition, localized disease processes can cause edema. A clot in a leg vein is a good example. Edema of one leg is a common symptom of a leg vein clot. Varicose veins can sometimes cause similar swelling.

Obstruction to lymphatics can also cause edema. This is a common problem after removal of lymph nodes for breast cancer. Other occasional causes include some medications and allergic reactions.

Edema is usually best treated by addressing the cause of the problem (treating the heart disease or kidney disease). The mainstay of treatment of edema, however, is with diuretic medications. Examples are furosemide (Lasix) and hydrochlorothiazide (HCTZ).

These drugs increase the body's excretion of sodium and water from the kidneys. They generally work well, but it's important to remember that they don't work as well in the presence of a high sodium intake. Even though you may not add salt yourself to your food, it may already be high in salt if someone else has prepared it. Most fast foods are very high in salt.

are! It usually needs to be treated in a hospital or emergency room by intravenous medicines that help to remove the extra fluid.

What can cause this extra fluid accumulation? Usually, fluid in the blood vessels is maintained by a complex series of processes that limit the amount of fluid leaking out into the surrounding tissues.

This finely tuned system can be unbalanced by a number of systemic illnesses. Heart disease is one cause, and edema is a hallmark of congestive heart failure. Liver disease, particularly cirrhosis, can also result in severe edema and in this case is often associated with accumulation of fluid in the abdomen, called ascites. Kidney disease is a third cause, either

Thanking foster families

Foster care coordinator Tara Reeves of the Southern Ute Indian Tribe's Division of Social Services organized a foster parent appreciation party to show the division's gratitude to its foster families, guardians, kinship providers and department staff. The Sunday, Jan. 8 party in the Rolling Thunder Bowling Lanes at the Sky Ute Casino Resort hosted foster families and providers for an afternoon of bowling and pizza. The Thompson and Herrera families (top) enjoy several varieties of pizza; Brianna Goodtracks-Alires (bottom) helps Dominique Howe choose a ball before bowling. The division is currently planning two more events for foster children: a sweat in March and a Bear Dance workshop in May. Swonger seeks District 59 House seat

Media release
Swonger for Colorado

Democrat Patrick Swonger of Silverton, Colo., announced on Tuesday, Jan. 9 at Fort Lewis College his candidacy for the Colorado House of Representatives' 59th District.

"My campaign is about jobs, education and preserving our environment while leveraging both its beauty and bounty," Swonger said.

He describes himself as a moderate who would work to bring jobs to the district while standing firm for families, children and small business.

"I've been in the military, large corporations, tiny start-ups," he said. "I've volunteered on town boards, regional councils, and search and rescue. I've seen a lot of the challenges here in the 59th, but I want to get to know our community even better."

As part of his campaign, Swonger announced a "59 Jobs" initiative. His goal is to work a half-day or more alongside fellow Coloradoans in 58 different district jobs.

"Ranching, farming, energy, education, tourism, health care: these are some key industries for our area in the 21st century," he said. "Working in these fields is the best way to learn more about what folks need to succeed."

A U.S. Air Force veteran, Swonger is a past commander of American Legion Post 14 in Silverton. He's worked in a variety of Colorado's key industries, including tourism, hospitality, construction, and mining. After completing college at the University of Florida on the G.I. Bill, Swonger spent nine years as division manager at a Fortune 500 company before starting a regional telecom and IT service business in Silverton in 1994.

Swonger is married with three school-aged boys.

point games — without a three-point arc.

Which, barely two hours after ceremonies of statehood started — commemorating President William H. Taft's proclamation on Jan. 6, 1912 — was precisely where Bloomfield appeared willing to remain on Friday, Jan. 6 to defuse the Ignacio High School boys — again.

The Bore-cats' frequent, motionless wasting of time on offense hadn't changed since facing the Bobcats last month. Neither had reliance on elbows to free themselves from IHS pressure.

Not much had changed at all, until a ridiculous five-point play with 106 seconds left stole not only the lead, but whatever momentum Ignacio still had from the previous night's near-upset in the opening round of the 2012 "Rumble in the Jungle" in Aztec, N.M.

With senior Shane Richmond having pierced eighth-ranked [NMHSCA Class 4A poll] Piedra Vista of Farmington for 37 points in a 60-58 loss, it was obvious that BHS was not only going to limit his touches, but Ignacio's as a whole. Still, Bloomfield's Bobcats found themselves trailing 31-30 with time no longer in their full favor — until sophomore Ryan Johnson attempted a layup on a breakaway.

Not knowing IHS soph Justin Carver's jumping ability, Carver not only tracked Johnson down from behind, but also rejected the shot away from the rim as it was rising. But what should have gone down as the defensive stop of the game was ruled a foul, with a goaltending infraction attached.

Johnson sank his "and-one" free throw, and senior Clay Payne followed with two more after Carver was hit with a technical foul for a brief protest. Suddenly, with multiple players in foul trouble — including Richmond; Carver and guard Clayton Jefferson would foul out — Ignacio needed a quick reawakening that never materialized after a contest, finalized at 38-32, badly needing a shot clock.

Carver and senior Xavier Watts each netted nine points, Jefferson and freshman Adison Jones each had five, Richmond ended with three FT's in four tries, and soph Adam Herrera was 1-2 at the stripe. Payne paced Bloomfield — which led 9-6 after one quarter, trailed 17-14 after two, and re-led 25-22 after three — with 18 points (12-14 FT). Johnson and point guard Erik Miller each scored seven.

Sinking 12 of 15 FT's versus PV — with Richmond and Jones accounting for all attempts — the Cats were behind 29-28 at half-time and 44-42 when the fourth quarter began. The Watts-Jefferson backcourt produced no points, but was crucial in containing Panther starters Ray deKay, Aaron Welch, and Isiah Valdez to a combined nine points.

Richmond, Jones (eight), and soph Kelton Richmond (seven) combined for 52 up front — more than enough to offset Ty Jacquez's 17 and Satchel Baker's eight. With regular Jacob Armijo injured, sixth-man Dakota Vigil helped make the difference with 15 points off the bench, but not until a long Richmond miss inside the final minute could Piedra Vista — and everyone inside Lillywhite Gym — exhale in relief.

With San Juan Basin League play resuming only three days (Jan. 10 at Dolores, results unavailable at press time) later, Ignacio got its motor restarted in the Rumble's seventh-place game an afternoon after losing to BHS. Facing 4A Miyamura [Gallup, N.M.], the Cats blew open a 27-

13 halftime lead after restricting the Patriots to just three points in the second quarter, and coasted to a 56-41 victory.

Richmond worked for 23 points (11-13 FT), easily canceling MHS's Jarred Meese (nine) and Isaac Padilla (eight). Jefferson added ten points for IHS, Jones nine, Carver five and Herrera four — on free throws during the team's 22-point fourth quarter (in which Richmond was 8-of-8 at the line).

Pat Fouser chipped in five points as nine Pats scored overall, opposed to Ignacio's eight.

League action awaits the Bobcats (5-3, 2-0 SJB), ninth-ranked in 2A prior to the tourney, this weekend with a trip to Norwood on Friday, Jan. 13 and a home date with Nucla the following afternoon.

FINAL "RUMBLE" PLACINGS: Championship — 3A Shiprock [N.M.] 68-63 over PV. Third-place game — 4A Montezuma-Cortez [Colo.] 57-46 over 4A Aztec. Fifth-place game — Bloomfield 49-41 over 2A Magdalena [N.M.]. Seventh-place game — IGNACIO 56-41 over Miyamura.

Lady 'Cats swipe 7th in Kirtland

By Joel Priest
Special to the Drum

Free throws ultimately decided — or didn't (both teams were a combined 0-8 in the final 1:25) — the seventh-place game last weekend at the Webb Toyota/Kirtland [N.M.] Central Girls' Basin Invitational.

How many Ignacio junior Mariah Vigil made — well, only a select few inside Bronco Arena really knew. The official scorebook-keeper, however, wasn't one of them. And Vigil?

To the Bloomfield [N.M.] Lady Bobcats, she was finally out of sight — having fouled out at that 1:25 mark in the fourth quarter — and, unfortunately, out of mind. She'd been a priority for Dan Larabee's players to contain, having registered 24 points and 11 rebounds on Day 1, and then another 17 points on Day 2 — both efforts coming against much higher-rated opponents.

And her getting to the foul line (14 FT's attempted on Day 1, 12 on Day 2) was a cause for alarm. Being as though it was the early-bird game on a Saturday, tired eyes at courtside may have jumped the gun — and possibly shot BHS in the back — when Ignacio's forward stepped to the stripe for two tosses with 5:24 left in the first half.

Still, the 4A squad had to examine evidence surrounding its own play in a 39-38 loss — their second defeat this season at the hands of the 2A Coloradans. For after the opening tip, Bloomfield caught Ignacio as flat as they could only have hoped for, and led 16-7 after eight minutes (and as great as 16-1).

When Vigil finally did get into the scoring column — on a FT with 0:15 left — BHS's advantage was still double-digit wide after IHS's Jordan Cuthair hit her first freebie just before the buzzer.

Horrid shooting and Ignacio's invigorated full-court press whittled Bloomfield's lead down to an apparent 33-32 after 24 completed minutes on Don Cluff Court. The Lady Cats had moved out front, 29-28 on the scoreboard, via a Sky Cotton three-pointer following a Pam Cotton weakside put-in of a Vigil airball. Bloomfield's Alexia Kosea (8 pts) countered with a strong 15-footer and teammate Whitney Charley (6 pts) then sank a triple, but Pam Cotton drilled a late three to set up the final quarter.

Vigil (4 pts?) did bury a free throw to evidently tie at 33 with 6:48 remaining. Pam Cotton again crashed the boards behind Bloomfield defenders to lay in a Sky Cotton (5 pts) long-range miss, and then dropped in two FT's herself for a 37-33 lead with 4:40 left.

Tiffany Henry (6 pts), back from a first-half bang on the head, cashed a three to seemingly put BHS ahead at 38-37, but IHS's Michelle Simmons powered in for a layup in response and the (probable) lead.

Bloomfield's Kallan Pablo missed her two tries after Vigil's dismissal, and teammate Trinity Mayo did likewise with 0:40 to go. But with 0:28 left, Pam Cotton unusually missed a pair, as did Simmons — giving BHS one last prayer with 0:04 left.

Fortunately for the black jerseys, Cotton (16 pts, 12 rebs, 7 blocks) had rejected a Pablo attempt in the paint, right into the hands of Simmons (7 pts), who was then hacked to stop the clock — and, for all practical purposes, forced Bloomfield to venture the floor's full length for a desperation heave.

With their first three San Juan Basin League games beginning three days later — including Jan. 13's trip to Norwood and a home game versus Nucla the next day — Ignacio improved to 3-3 overall (1-1 SJB), after having fallen to Thoreau, N.M., and Grants, N.M., at the Webb.

Top-ranked in 4A coming in, GHS greeted the Lady Cats as one would expect — a 70-40 rout. It could have been far, far worse had any number of their numerous three-point misses actually hit their target, but, like good Lady Pirates, they kept firing anyways.

Besides Vigil's tourney breakout, Pam Cotton and Valerie Armstrong each managed six points, but Simmons — double- and sometimes triple-teamed when she had the rock — was blanked. Guards Sydney Mares and Julie Gallegos each scored 13 for Grants, while 6-foot-2 sophomore Teige Zeller had 17.

Grants junior reserve Ashley Masters hit a 15-footer with 0:02 left to even out the final margin.

Having trailed by just 10-6 after a quarter with Grants, Ignacio's start was even better versus THS, and a Simmons breakaway layup with nine seconds left gave IHS a 13-12 lead after one.

But behind senior Felicia House (18 pts) and junior Tristine Wilber (11), the Lady Hawks recovered a 31-26 half-time lead, stretched it to as much as 15 (44-29) en route to leading 44-32 after three quarters, and ultimately rebuilt the advantage to the final 56-40.

In addition to Vigil's encore, the Lady Cats got eight points from Pam Cotton, six from Simmons, four from Cloe Seibel, and two from Sky Cotton against Thoreau — which also got 10 points from senior Roshawna Yazzie and seven from Claudia Perry.

FINAL WEBB PLACINGS: Championship — KC 56-54 (OT) over Grants. Third-place game — 3A Shiprock [N.M.] 35-34 over 5A Fruita [Colo.] Monument. Fifth-place game — Thoreau 47-39 over 4A Belen [N.M.]. Seventh-place game — IGNACIO over Bloomfield [N.M.].

Matmen greet '12 at RMI

By Joel Priest

The pin parade for Teagan Overturf resumed last weekend in Ignacio High School's first action of 2012.

Only problem was Del Norte's Austin McDonald had a similar idea, and prevailed in a key 152-pound clash at the 18-team Rocky Mountain Invitational, hosted by Pagosa Springs on Saturday, Jan. 7.

Ignacio's senior recovered to notch three pins more — over Aztec's Maverick Heater, Monte Vista's Mitch Vanderpool, and Antonito's Amos Abeyta — upping his season total to 19 out of his 20 victories, but the chance of a title at the popular event was gone, and he finished fifth despite a 4-1 mark.

The Bobcats, with eight competing, finished 12th overall with a total of 64.5 points and one individual champ. Center (75) bridged the gap to Bloomfield, N.M. (77), in tenth. With three champions, Aztec racked up 174 points and took the team title back to New Mexico. Centauri (160) was second, also counting three winners, and Bayfield (155) was third with one champion.

Senior Alex Pena went 4-0 at 126 pounds as IHS's unbeaten — senior Colton Wyatt was held out due to a pre-Christmas injury — and stopped AHS's Robert Escojeda 4-2 in the final. At 132, senior Jeff Herrera also saved a fifth place for Ignacio — losing his second match 3-1 to Durango's Nicholas Tarpley, but then bouncing back with two decision wins and a default from AHS's Jesse Mitchell to finish 4-1.

Junior Taylor Smith earned the Cats some points with his eighth-place result at 113 pounds, going 1-3, while Keith Joosten (106), Isaac Pena (120) and Blaine Mickey (160) each went 1-2 and gained more experience in their initial high-school campaigns. Christian Knoll had a difficult draw and made an 0-2 early exit at 170 pounds.

Next for the Bobcats will be this weekend's 41st annual Rob Mickel Invitational, hosted by Salida, with a trip to Paonia's Screaming Eagle Invitational to follow on January 21.

2012 RMI CHAMPIONS: 106 — Jacob Palmgren, Del Norte (over Monte Vista's Diondre Garcia); 113 — Noah Trujillo, Antonito (over Durango's Dillon Anthony); 120 — Ethan Coombs, Centauri (over Widefield's Anthony Robb); 126

“The survey that used to take over 40 hours is now taking 30 hours or less,” he said. “GPS technology has advanced to where we can now plug all the boundaries into the pilots’ GPS and we can be sure we are getting precise coverage of our units, not double-counting animals and not straying into non-tribal jurisdictions.”

Division Head Steve Whiteman said the annual count is a crucial part of creating a region-wide picture of wildlife activity.

“Deer and elk within the San Juan Basin are migratory species that cross political boundaries,” he said. “They are really shared resources that all of the jurisdictions have vested interest in managing. The annual game count has been a big part of that coordinated management with our neighbors.”

Southern Ute Permanent Fund employment programs for Native Americans and Southern Ute tribal members

Regular part-time and full-time employment

All of the tribe's Permanent Fund regular part-time and full-time positions will be posted on a bulletin board in the north entrance of the Leonard C. Burch Building. The tribe accepts electronic job applications that are completed and submitted online. Job postings from the U.S. Bureau of Indian Affairs and other outside organizations are also provided for job seekers. The JOB HOTLINE — 970-563-4777 — also includes information on Permanent Fund part-time and full-time regular positions. Information can also be obtained on the tribal website at www.southern-ute.nsn.us. For more information, call the Personnel Department at 970-563-4750 (fax: 970-563-0302).

Temporary employment

In addition to regular part-time or full-time positions, the tribe also accepts employment applications from individuals who are interested in temporary work. The tribe accepts electronic job applications that are completed and submitted online. The Personnel Department keeps these applications in a file for six months and will work with supervisors who need an employee on a temporary basis. Temporary employment will last for a period not to exceed six months unless there are extenuating circumstances that would require an extension in duration. Interested applicants should complete an online application or contact the Personnel Department for information on temporary employment opportunities. For more information, call the Personnel Department at 970-563-4750 (fax: 970-563-0302).

Permanent Fund trainee positions

In accordance with tribal policies, supervisors shall work in coordination with the Personnel Department to develop SUIIT member trainee positions when possible. The hiring department shall evaluate their own job vacancies, staff available to provide training for the trainee, current workload, and any other relevant factors to determine the feasibility of modifying an existing position into a trainee position. The creation of a trainee position involves lowering qualifications for certain jobs which allows the SUIIT member to "train up to" the minimum qualifications of existing positions within the Permanent Fund. A trainee position is structured around a training curriculum for a specified period of time and outlines the experience and education that must be completed; trainee curriculums are usually designed to last one year. Upon successful completion of the training curriculum, the SUIIT member will possess the needed qualifications for the job will be placed into the regular full-time position. The trainee position process is similar to the Tribal Member Apprentice Program, which is explained in the section below. However, a SUIIT member apprentice is not guaranteed job placement upon the completion of their curriculum. The Personnel Department can provide information and answer questions for departments that wish to create a trainee position. For more information, call the Personnel Department at 970-563-4750 (fax: 970-563-0302).

TEAM Program

The TEAM Program was reactivated in 2011 and is designed to employ Southern Ute tribal members only. The program is located in the Personnel Department and the employment assistant works with tribal members for job placement. This program provides 240 hours of work for SUIIT members, and the program has allowed extensions of work hours based on positive employee performance. Tribal members can work in various tribal departments and divisions based on experience and interests.

Tribal Member Apprentice Program

The Tribal Member Apprentice Program also provides additional employment opportunities for SUIIT members only. The Apprentice Program was designed to provide education, training, on-the-job experience, and mentoring to eligible tribal members in order to build a career foundation to pursue further educational goals or career development. The program is not designed to displace current tribal employees; however, some high-level tribal managers have voluntarily ended tribal employment to allow tribal-member apprentices to assume their positions. Thus far, the Apprentice Program has placed tribal members in high-level management positions within the Permanent Fund. The Apprentice Program has been used to provide both low- and top-level management work experience for tribal members. Tribal-member apprentice employees are compensated from the limited Apprentice Program budget. Current Apprentice Committee members are Mark Torres (TERO division head), La Titia Taylor (Education Department director), Hilda Burch (Housing Project administrator) and Brian Sheffield (Personnel Department director).

TERO (Tribal Employment Rights Office)

The Personnel Department works with TERO staff to identify SUIIT members or local Native Americans that can perform Permanent Fund jobs. In the recent years, TERO has collected fees that are now utilized to fund and create jobs for tribal members and Native Americans. TERO has internal staff that works with individuals to find employment within and outside of the tribe's Permanent Fund. Interested individuals should call TERO at 970-563-0117 (fax: 970-563-4824).

Vocational Rehabilitation

The Southern Ute Indian Tribe Vocational Rehabilitation program is a federally-funded program that strives to assist Native American Indians with disabilities in preparing for, obtaining and maintaining long-term employment.

There are three main criteria that must be met for an applicant to be eligible for VR services. Applicants must:

- Be an enrolled member of a Native American tribe
 - Live on or near the Southern Ute Indian Reservation
 - Have a verifiable physical or mental challenge
- Examples of eligible SUIITVR challenges include diabetes, alcohol or substance dependency, hearing loss, amputation, blindness or eye disorders, chronic pain, back disorders, asthma, learning disorders, depression, or any other physical or mental condition that limits one's ability to work.

Examples of services we can help provide include resume writing, interviewing skills, assessments, education, training, job skills, clothing, tools, hearing aids, glasses, and whatever else may be needed for an individual to gain or maintain employment. Call the Vocational Rehabilitation Department at 970-563-4727 (fax: 970-563-4840).

Youth in Natural Resources Program

This is a yearly program operated under the Natural Resources Department in the summer months. The program employs tribal members and local Native American youth who will work and learn about the management and preservation of the tribe's natural resources. Priority for filling these positions goes to Southern Ute tribal members first. This program was created to entice Southern Ute tribal members to pursue education and careers in natural resources. Call Wildlife Resource Management at (970) 563-0130 (fax: 970-563-0305).

Education Department Programs

Excellence in Education internships and adult internships

The Education Department provides 12 positions a year for tribal members starting at 16 years of age interested in employment opportunities. The program includes a maximum of 640 hours per fiscal year. The program is designed to help any tribal member gain job experience; however, we encourage college students to participate so that they may have experience in their field of study before they obtain the degree.

Youth Employment Program (YEP)

This program is designed to provide the youth, ages 14-18, an opportunity to gain and learn work ethics through work experience and education in cultural, financial and life events. The YEP coordinator begins contacting the youth in late March and early April. The program provides services for enrolled members of the Southern Ute Tribe that have the following:

- Proof of age (birth certificate, driver license, tribal card)
- Proof of enrollment or parent enrollment (tribal ID card)
- Proof of Social Security number (Social Security card or document)

The contact for these programs is the Department of Education at 970-563-0237 (fax: 970-563-0382).

The political party of fly-fishers

By Don Oliver
Special to the Drum

They're back and scarier than ever.

Who are they? They are the wonderful people that bring you the national elections every four years. During the last cycle, we witnessed huge sums of money raised, opponents bashed, promises made that would never be kept, and dirty tricks played. For all the rhetoric, we got two really elaborate and pointless conventions, and regardless who won, a major disappointment.

I ask you, did either party actually spend any of the money raised to build one habitat house, reduce the deficit, or take some of that money and spend it on the worst public school system in the nation — Washington D.C. — and turn it into the showcase of how public education should work?

Needless to say, none of that happened. All we got for our money was a bunch of narcissistic, self-righteous, Bible-thumping, chest-pounding, run-off-at-the-mouth, do-nothing candidates. Made me proud; how about you?

Well, not being one to sit around and just complain, I have decided to form a new political party. Yep, I have, and it will be known as the Political Party of Fly-fishers.

However, like all political parties, there are certain rules and requirements for membership. To become a member of PPoFF, you have to either fly-fish, want to learn how to fly-fish, read a book about fly-fishing, or know someone who meets one of these qualifications.

Once you meet the strict rules of membership, you are eligible to run for office under the fly rod of PPoFF.

There are rules a member must follow when running for office. To start with, there are no age, gender, religious, race, or sexual preference boxes to check. In fact, you will receive extra help for your campaign if you are under the age of 12, or a single mom with two children and two jobs who can fly-fish and balance a checkbook. Once your candidacy is established, the fun part begins: raising money.

Once the first dollar is raised, the rules of PPoFF kick in. All money raised, by any candidate, will go into one big bank account. Then, one-half of these funds will be spent on worthwhile charitable projects, such as Big Brothers Big Sisters, Boys & Girls Club, Habitat for Humanity, Red Cross, or the Salvation Army.

Once the money starts to roll in, and worthwhile projects are being donated to, the rallies will begin. The rallies for PPoFF are going to be positive events. They will have civil and spirited debates, ending with beer and hot dogs.

The debates and cookouts will be accompanied with the doing of good deeds that use fly-fishing. Project Healing Waters and Casting for Recovery are two that jump to my mind.

Once all the viable candidates have made their cases, a very scientific method will be used to select the person to challenge the candidates from the two nationally known do-nothing parties. The PPoFF convention will have a 10-fish cast-off. The candidate catching the most fish with 10 casts wins.

Should there be a tie, a sudden death fish-off will occur.

Just think. Our candidate will be able to stand there, look the other party's bobble heads in the eye, and ask them: How much money did they give away to good causes, and how much time did they actually spend doing something good? Assuming they answer truthfully — none — it's in the bag.

Folks, we can win this.

Just imagine what a great country this will be having a president that not only fly-fishes, but knows how to give back more than he or she receives. I get all warm and fuzzy just thinking about it.

Who am I: Where am I going?

By Tim Yaw

Nuucia Bible Baptist Church

Thus far we have concluded that love as we know it is self-centered because it is focused inward.

We then logically concluded that since genuine love cannot come from within, it must be external. So we changed our view from a natural focus to a spiritual focus.

In order to do that, we needed to understand ourselves by answering the three basic questions of our humanity: Where did I come from? What is my purpose? Where am I going?

In previous discussions, we affirmed that humans were created by an intelligent spiritual being. With intelligence proving personality, we concluded that this being, though a spirit, was a person. Being a person, we named him God.

And since God created humans, He surely did it for a purpose. We then agreed that the human purpose is to glorify the Creator, making God the focus of our existence. Early in our discussion, it was agreed that humans are of physical and spiritual form, the body containing a soul, with the soul continuing to exist after the body is deceased.

So where is the real us, our soul, going after the death of our body?

During our discussion of the subjective view of God versus the objective God, we affirmed that God exists outside our perception of him. Since God is alive and supreme, would it not be reasonable that in his sovereignty he has the right to set the standard of life now as well as life after the death of our body?

Sure it does, and we accepted that when we saw our purpose in this existence was to glorify him. In other words, God expects to be the main focus of our lives and we glorify him by recognizing his sovereignty and trusting him.

Herein lies the problem in our human existence.

From birth, we have expected the focus of others to be on us. When our focus is on ourselves, we are not focused on our real purpose, nor can we provide the love needed to live peacefully together.

Our pride further disallows us to live by God's expectations. In other words, though we may desire to, we are not able to satisfy God. God's will for his human creation is to exist with him eternally. But because God is perfectly holy and pure in goodness, he cannot relate to imperfection and impurity.

*Is this not genuine love?

No matter how good we might try to be, our pride puts us at odds with God. Eternal separation from God is what God calls spiritual death, or Hell. Because our contaminated moral state separates us from God, something must be done to reconcile the problem or we will spend eternity separated from him.

God tells us through his word, the Holy Bible, that no one is good and all have fallen short of his glory. God's glory is his perfection of holiness, which we cannot attain through our own effort. God calls this sin and tells us that the wages of sin are death.

This spiritual death needs to be rectified because after our body dies, there can be no reconciliation with God.

Because God understands our shortcoming, through his mercy and love, he provided a means of reconciliation. God left his spiritual realm and manifested himself as a sinless human. He walked with his creation in the name of Jesus Christ.

Why? Because God loves his people whom he created with which to have an eternal loving relationship. You see, our inward focus on our self-satisfaction makes us impure and unholy. The penalty for that is an eternal existence without God. A pure and holy person is the only creature with whom God can have a relationship.

Jesus Christ was that person while he walked the Earth. He took all the sin of mankind on his sinless self and died, paying the death penalty we should have paid.

Jesus' sacrifice for us satisfied God's requirement for his intended relationship with humanity. God then raised Jesus from the dead to mediate between us and God in the spiritual realm and strengthens God's desired relationship.

God tells us that if we believe that Jesus took our sin on himself paying our debt, confess that we are sinners and be willing to repent from our sinful lifestyle and live for him, we will never be separated from God again and will live with him forever. When this belief is enacted, God lives in the believer through his holy spirit, who cleanses us of our unrighteousness, sanctifying the believer toward perfect holiness and purity.

Is this not genuine love? God left his realm to redeem his human creation by sacrificing himself!

Wow! It appears that we have found genuine love. Yes, genuine love is sacrificially based on the needs of others. It is giving through self-sacrifice in order that others will benefit ahead of us. Humans are not capable of true sacrificial love; thus, without God, we cannot love each other properly.

God gives the believer only two commands to follow: Love him with all your heart, your soul, your mind and your strength; and love your neighbor as yourself.

Pretty simple, huh? We love God with all we have, putting him first in our lives by sacrificing our self-centeredness, and he then gives us the power to sacrificially love others! So, a perfect and peaceful world consists of loving God and loving each other followed by an eternal existence of love in the presence of our Lord.

In the next issue, we will begin digging deeper into this mystery that God has revealed to us.

Waci'-ci ups game at Southern Ute museum

Visitors to the new Southern Ute Cultural Center & Museum have noticed that the facility doesn't just allow you to view tribal culture behind the glass — you can take some home with you, too.

The new Waci'-ci Trading Company opened with the museum in May 2011, bringing the goods many have sought in downtown Ignacio for 25 years to the heart of the tribal campus. Owner Mel Silva said the response to Waci'-ci — Ute for "antelope" — has been great among the Native American community.

"They definitely are our best customers," he said.

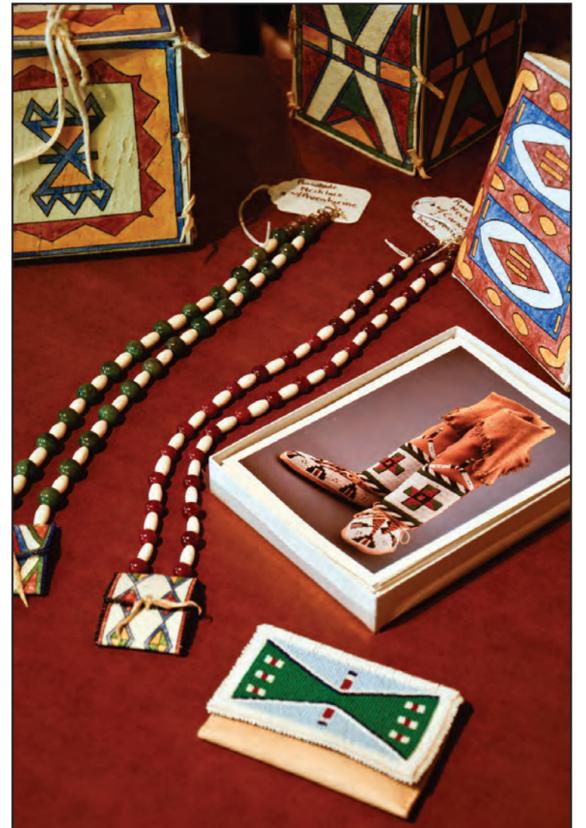

Silva says his purchasing choices are informed by a lifetime of living in Ignacio, growing up around tribal members.

"In school, all of my best friends were Southern Ute — and still are," he said. "I kind of understand the tastes. It just kind of comes from being around it."

When Waci'-ci won the museum spot, Silva opted to keep his downtown Ignacio store open. With limited floor space at the new location — about 1,200 square feet, compared to 4,000 downtown — he had to be selective about his stock, focusing on unique and one-of-a-kind items.

"I really wanted to do just the best-quality things here to match the facility," he said. "This is a world-class facility."

From jewelry and moccasins to books and blankets — including one with a unique design commissioned for the museum by Pendleton Woolen Mills — the shop offers a variety of goods. Silva said he purchases items from many independently working Native Americans, including Southern Utes such as Debra K. Box and Oreland Joe.

"I have great relationships with lots and lots of Native American artists," he said, citing his 15 years of wholesale experience around the country as having allowed him to build an extensive network.

Traffic at the store has roughly met Silva's expectations, he said.

"Thing are about what I expected. I expected it to be more of a summer business," he said, adding that with 30 bus tours scheduled to visit the museum next summer, the future looks bright.

Southern Ute tribal members do receive discounts on purchases at Waci'-ci's museum location: 33 percent off non-bead-work jewelry, 5 percent off books, and 10 percent off everything else. Museum shop purchases are also exempt from sales tax, saving buyers another 6.9 percent.

Silva said a portion of shop proceeds go back to the museum, keeping money within the tribal community.

"We're very interested in any input that [tribal members] have — things that they would like to see that we're not carrying," he said, adding that anyone is welcome to call the store or talk to the clerks during a visit.

The shop's winter hours are 10 a.m. — 4 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday; in the summer, it will return to 9 a.m. — 6 p.m., Tuesday through Sunday.
