Like a village under siege, the State Line Fire as seen from Bondad Hill consumed 350 acres approximately five miles north of the New Mexico state line. The fire was 80 percent contained as of Wednesday, June 27. The Type 3 team will transition the fire to a Type 4 incident commander and a smaller crew, with one 20-person crew and two engines remaining on scene to complete containment. The estimated cost of the fire is $381,000.

SUMMER FIRE WATCH

Thunderstorms prompt worries of new fire starts

By Keyana Valdez
THE SOUTHERN UTE DRUM

On the 10-year anniversary of the infamous Missionary Ridge Fire, wildfires are again torching growing areas of southwest Colorado under hot, dry conditions.

A brief but intense thunderstorm on the evening of Tuesday, June 26 brought some much-needed moisture to the Southern Ute Indian Reservation and surrounding area, but with it several new fire starts.

The Lightner Creek Fire, reported at about 1 p.m. the following day near Durango, grew quickly and was estimated at 80 acres as of Thursday, June 28, burning on private property and the Perins Peak State Wildlife Area. Sixty residents along county roads 207 and 208 were issued pre-evacuation notices. For updates on that fire, call 970-385-8700.

The Escarpment Fire, near Mesa Verde National Park on the Ute Mountain Ute Indian Reservation, had grown to about 75 acres. Firefighters were working to contain it, though it was not accessible by road.

A small blaze near Lake Nighthorse also started at just after 5 a.m. and burned about 2 acres. Firefighters successfully contained it before it reached any structures.

Lightning sparked at least 15 new fires on the reservation, mostly in the HD Mountains near Spring Creek, said Rich Gustafson, fire management officer with the U.S. Bureau of Indian Affairs' Southern Ute Agency — though crews were finding success in containing them as of the following morning.

The National Weather Service issued a hazardous weather outlook on Wednesday, June 27 forecasting more thunderstorms with gusty winds and little rain, followed by dry and hot conditions over the weekend. Its forecast predicted sunny weather with temperatures in the low 90s through the middle of next week, offering little relief in the short term.

Meanwhile, firefighters' efforts to contain existing blazes have met with mixed results.

GROWTH FUND

Tribe seeks to mitigate environmental hazards of coalbed methane

By Ace Stryker
THE SOUTHERN UTE DRUM

For more than a decade, the Southern Ute Indian Tribe has been coming clean on the potential environmental effects of oil and gas development in the San Juan Basin and hoping others would follow its example.

Representatives of the tribe's Growth Fund led a tour on Saturday, June 23 of aspects of the Fruitland Formation underlying the Southern Ute Indian Reservation to members of the Four Corners Geological Society. Of interest to the geologists were methane seeps, which the tribe believes may be partially attributed to drilling, and underground phenomena known as coal fires.

Geologist Kyle Siesser and engineer Bill Flint of the Growth Fund's Department of Energy also discussed ongoing mitigation efforts to protect tribal land and resources.

THE FRUITLAND OUTCROP

The Fruitland Formation, a 75-million-year-old geologic formation underlying southwest Colorado and northwest New Mexico, provides the majority of La Plata County's gas production. Its coal layers contain some of the richest known deposits of methane in the United States.

But the area where the formation slopes upward and is exposed to the surface along its northern rim — which approaches Durango from the southwest, turns east below Lemon and Vallecito reservoirs, and returns into New Mexico near the Piedra River — is called the outcrop, and problems tend to arise in places along it.

"Methane seepage and coal fires present threats to the environment and the health and safety of people living in the area," Siesser said.

Methane seeps occur where gas that's typically trapped in coal deep underground travels upward into the soil and air near the surface. Seeps are bad for various reasons: Methane is explosive, it's a greenhouse gas, and it kills vegetation where it reaches roots, displacing oxygen. It's also sometimes accompanied by hydrogen sulfide, a toxic gas.

Significantly, methane seeping to the surface is also a lost resource, Siesser said.

Coal fires, by contrast, are still underground phenomena that take place when coal near the surface ignites — through a lightning strike, spontaneous combustion, or some other means — and can burn for decades or longer. They increase the risk for surface fires, create unstable ground, and burn methane, again leading to a loss of tribal resources.

METHANE SEEPAGE

Documents exist from the late 1800s suggesting that methane seeps were already occurring in the area, Siesser said. But reports of methane seeps began to increase in the mid-1980s, coinciding with increased gas production, according to the U.S. Bureau of Land Management.

"The tribe feels that down-dip production of coal-bed methane has exacerbated naturally occurring seeps along the Fruitland Outcrop," Siesser said. "The [Southern Ute Indian] Tribal Council has supported the mitigation measures and the ongoing studying that we've done along the outcrop."

The reasoning goes like this: To get methane from most wells, the first step is to drill and extract water, reducing the pressure underground and allowing the gas to move more freely. But when that happens, the gas that isn't caught by the well follows its natural inclination to move upward through the rock, eventually finding its way to the outcrop.

THE SOUTHERN UTE DRUM

The Southern Ute Indian Tribe's Education Department teamed up with the University of Colorado Boulder's Indigenous Alliance Program on June 20-21 to teach Southern Ute students to build computers.

Led by CU Ph.D. student Calvin Pohawatchoko Jr., six students spent two days assembling their own machines from components including motherboards, processors and power supplies. At the end of the program, each student took home their own machine.

UTE LANGUAGE PROGRAM

11.1. Suffix pronouns

In this column we will finish the discussion of the structure (morphology) of Ute verbs. We will first discuss the use of subject and object pronouns as verb suffixes. Such suffix pronouns are optional in Ute, and are the last element on the verbal word. A fuller discussion of all Ute pronouns will appear in a later column. Unlike English, the subject and object suffix pronouns in Ute are identical. Compare:

a. Object:	mama-chi woman/S 'the woman saw him/her '	'u the/S	punikya-qhay-'u see-ANT-3s
	mama-chi woman/S 'the woman saw me '	'u the/S	punikya-qha-n see-ANT-1s
	mama-chi then-be woman/S 'the woman saw us '	'u the/S	punikya-qhaa-numu see-ANT-1p
b. Subject:	mamachi woman/O 's/he saw the woman'	'uway the/O	punikya-qhay-'u see-ANT-3s
	mamachi woman/O 'I saw the woman'	'uway the/O	punikya-qha-n see-ANT-1s
	mamachi woman/O 'we saw the woman'	'uway the/O	punikya-qha-numu see-ANT-1p

Since the subject and object suffix pronouns above are identical, marking the other participant of the event as subject in (a) or object in (b) helps clarify whether the pronoun refers the object (a) or subject (b).

11.2. First-syllable stem reduplication

While it is true that most of the morphology of Ute verbs involves suffixes, there are a few verb prefixes too. We have already discussed the negative prefix (column 10). Another prefix is the reduplication of the first syllable of the verb-stem. Such reduplication signals that the action is distributed over various places or times, and thus repeated. Compare:

	simple	reduplicated
a.	káa-puga sing-REM '(s/he) sang'	ka-qháa-puga RED -sing-REM '(s/he) sang on and off, here and there'
b.	sarichi punikya-puga dog/O see-REM '(s/he) saw a dog'	sarichi pu-púnikya-puga dog/O RED -see-REM '(s/he) saw a dog here and there, repeatedly'
c.	táa-pugay-'u kick-REM-3s '(s/he) kicked him (once)'	ta-táa-pugay-'u RED -kick-REM-3s '(s/he) kicked him repeatedly'

11.3. Incorporated stems

The left-most prefix position on the Ute verbal word is the incorporation of noun, adjective, or verbs stems before the verb. This is a productive grammatical process whose effect depends in part on the type of the incorporated stem. An incorporated noun stem may signal an object, an instrument, or manner. Compare:

	simple	incorporated
a. Object (noun):	núuchi táu-'apagha-rú Ute/O well-speak-HAB '(s/he) speaks Ute well'	núu-'apagha-rú Ute-speak-HAB '(s/he) is a good Ute-speaker'
b. Instrument (noun):	tukuavi wiichi-m tuka-mi meat/O knife/O-INS eat-HAB '(s/he) eats meat with a knife'	tukuavi wí-tuka-mi meat/O knife -eat-HAB '(s/he) knife-eats the meat'
c. Adverb (noun):	mamachi-pani paghay-mi woman/O-like walk-HAB '(he) walks like a woman'	mama-paghay-mi woman-walk-HAB '(he) woman-walks'

And incorporated verb or adjective stem most commonly signals manner. Compare:

	simple	incorporated
d. Adverb (verb):	saku-ga paghay-'way limp-PAR walk-IMM '(s/he) is walking limping'	saku-paghay-'way limp -walk-IMM '(s/he) is limp-walking'
e. Adverb (adjective):	'apagha-y speak-IMM '(s/he) is talking'	piya-'apagha-y sweet -talk-IMM '(s/he) is sweet-talking'
		(piya-ghama-tu 'sweet-tasting', 'sugar')

In the next column we will discuss in more detail Ute pronouns and related words.

KIDNEY CORNER

Urine obstruction: A common cause of kidney failure

By Dr. Mark Saddler
DURANGO NEPHROLOGY
ASSOCIATES

In previous issues of the Kidney Corner, we have discussed several different causes of kidney damage, including diabetes, high blood pressure and glomerulonephritis (an inflammation of the kidneys).

One common cause of kidney damage we have not previously discussed is obstruction to the flow of urine.

Urine leaves the kidneys and travels to the bladder by way of the ureters, two tubes that lie at the back of the abdomen and connect the kidneys to the bladder. Urine then leaves the bladder via the urethra, a single tube that leads to the exterior.

Complete blockage of one ureter stops all function to one kidney. This may be caused by a stone or tumor, and if it happens suddenly it is usually quite painful.

The kidney involved may have no function at all, but if the other kidney is working well, there may be little or no change in kidney function, so kidney failure is not usual in this situation. Of course, it's best to try to restore drainage of the affected kidney to prevent permanent damage.

It's rare for stones to occur in both kidneys at the same time, but some types of tumors may obstruct both ureters and cause severe kidney failure.

Obstruction of the urinary tract further down, for example in the urethra, effectively blocks the drainage of both kidneys, so kidney failure is common in this situation. The most common cause of urethral obstruction in men is prostate enlargement.

The prostate gland is situated around the uppermost part of the urethra, and as it expands (which is very common in men as they age), it can gradually close off the urethra. This leads to ballooning of the bladder, and eventually the back pressure can affect the kidneys, leading to kidney failure.

Since this usually happens gradually, men may not be aware of the damage being sustained to their urinary tract. Early symptoms include a need for frequent urination (since the bladder does not empty well with each urination), a need to urinate at night, and a decrease in the strength of the urinary stream.

During a physical examination, a doctor may check for enlargement of the prostate. A blood test called "prostate specific antigen," or PSA, can also be used to check for prostate problems.

If urinary obstruction is detected early, relief of the obstruction can potentially reverse the kidney damage. Unfortunately, long standing obstruction may cause kidney failure that cannot be corrected.

Obstruction lower in the urinary tract can be temporarily relieved by a bladder catheter ("Foley catheter"). For most men with prostatic obstruction, a surgery to open up the prostate gland is usually a better long-term solution.

Obstruction higher up the urinary tract, for example in the ureter, may require a more invasive method of restoring drainage, sometimes using a tube that drains directly out of the back (a "nephrostomy"), or sometimes by a stent: a tube inside the ureter that drains urine into the bladder.

Calvin Pohawpatchoko, a Ph.D. student at the University of Colorado Boulder, instructs students during a hands-on workshop in computer building skills.

The program purchases all the latest computer components and software for the students to build. It aims to foster technology skills and insight into technical careers and educational opportunities.

The students also learned about cyber-security and simple programming. The tribe's Education Department will provide follow-up mentoring with help from the Department of Pre-college Outreach Services in the CU Office of Diversity, Equity and Community Engagement.

The program started in 1995 with one student at the University of Alaska-Anchorage and now serves more than 250 bachelor-degree seeking students. Since 2009, the program has expanded into 12 colleges and universities as the "Indigenous Alliance."

Ignacio students were given the opportunity to learn firsthand how to build and operate a computer workstation during a two-day program at the Southern Ute Education Center.

EDUCATION UPDATES

EDUCATION ANNOUNCES GED TEST DATES

The Department of Education would like to announce the GED test dates for the upcoming months: June 1, July 13 and Aug. 3. The test is held the first Friday of every month at the Southern Ute Education Building at 330 Burns Ave. Registration and payments are due by Tuesday before the test. Scholarships are available for Native Americans who live within 50 miles of the service area, spend 12 hours in class, score a 450 on practice tests and submit paperwork two weeks in advance. For more information, call Pine River Community Learning Center at 970-563-0681 or Donna Broad at 970-563-0237 or 970-749-1953. Also, the Education Department has an online GED Academy classroom that is available for at home GED test preparation. Please call Donna Broad at 970-563-0237 ext. 2784 or 970-749-1953 for passwords. There is a minimum time requirement each week to be allowed to use this program.

The GED test will be changing January 2014. All previous test scores will be thrown out and students will need to retake all 5 sections. It is important that students complete all 5 sections of their GED before the January 2014 date.

EDUCATION ANNOUNCES SCHOLARSHIP DEADLINE

The Southern Ute Education Department would also like to announce that the deadline for full-time scholarship requests for the 2012-2013 academic school year will be July 2 at 5 p.m. Incomplete or late applications WILL NOT be considered for full time. NO EXCEPTIONS!

INTERNSHIP PROGRAM

The Southern Ute Adult Occupational Training Program is accepting applications for tribal members who are interested in working for six months as an intern. Call Luana Herrera at the Southern Ute Education Department 970-563-0237 for more information or to sign up for the class.

ATTENTION TRIBAL MEMBERS

The Southern Ute Adult Occupational Training Program is now accepting applications on a first come, first serve basis. There 20 scholarships available at this time. The scholarships are for tribal members who are interested in attending a vocational training school or a junior college that have certificate programs. In order for students to attend any school it has to be an accredited and approved by (CHEA) Council of Higher Education Accreditation. There is no deadline for the certificate program, since some vocational training schools are year round. Carrying equipment and chainsaws up steep terrain, firefighters work a hand line, clearing away all possible fuel sources, including scrub oak, pine needles, and dead wood.

The Chugachmiut Yukon Fire Crew, contracted out of Alaska to help with wildfire threats on Southern Ute Indian Reservation lands this summer, cut a control line by hand on Monday, June 18 in Garcia Canyon under the direction of Howard Richards Jr. and Kenney Wehn of the U.S. Bureau of Indian Affairs' Southern Ute Agency. The crew has helped contain the State Line Fire and received a welcome from the Southern Ute Indian Tribal Council on Tuesday, June 19.

STATE LINE FIRE

The Durango Interagency Dispatch Center reported on Wednesday, June 27 that the State Line Fire along U.S. Highway 550 near Bondad had stopped growing at approximately 350 acres and was 80 percent contained.

The State Line Fire began on the afternoon of Saturday, June 23, forcing a brief closure of the highway and a pre-evacuation notice in the immediate area. Its cause is still under investigation.

The fire burned just one structure, an old shed, while firefighters' efforts spared nearby residences. A team of approximately 150 firefighters — including three 20-person crews, five engines, one helicopter, and overhead personnel — has been reduced to just one 20-person crew and two engines to finish containment and mop up.

The estimated cost to date of the State Line Fire is $381,000.

151 FIRE

Chimney Rock Archaeological Area volunteers reported a small fire on the north side of Cabezón Canyon at about 2 p.m. on Monday, June 25. It was attributed to a tree falling on a power line.

plane and helicopter, aided local responders in reacting quickly. Chimney Rock was evacuated and nearby residents were given a pre-evacuation order, but firefighters managed to suppress the blaze and contain it at about 10 acres by 7 p.m. Mop-up continued into the middle of the week.

WEBER FIRE

Investigation continues into the cause of the Weber Fire, which has burned nearly 10,000 acres south of Mancos. A crew of 635 firefighters continue to work day and night to slow its rapid growth. Containment was estimated at 30 percent on Thursday, June 28, though concerns lingered about areas of heavy fuel and alignment with winds in the coming days, according to Rocky Mountain Incident Management Team C.

As of June 28, no structures had been destroyed, but approximately 150 people remained evacuated from their homes as a precaution. Responders were carefully watching the fire's slow march toward U.S. Highway 160. Its growth potential is considered "extreme."

The Colorado Department of Public Health and Environment issued a wildfire smoke health advisory on Wednesday, June 27 for the area near the fire, expecting "very unhealthy to hazardous" air quality. The department recommended staying indoors.

For more information on the Weber Fire, call 720-425-5018 or 720-219-8823.

LITTLE SAND FIRE

The Little Sand Fire, which was sparked by lightning on Sunday, May 13 on San Juan has stalled on the ridge between Coldwater Creek and Sand Creek. To date, the fire has not destroyed any structures, though the cost to date is estimated at more than $5.5 million.

A crew of 234 personnel headed by a National Incident Management Team is managing the fire, though its growth potential is still listed as high. The state also issued a smoke health advisory for the area on Thursday, June 28.

More information on the Little Sand Fire is available by calling 970-444-2201.

RESTRICTIONS IN EFFECT

The Southern Ute Indian Reservation elevated its fire restrictions to Stage II on Wednesday, June 13, citing high temperatures and "extremely dry" fuel conditions.

"Fuel conditions are as dry as we've seen in a decade, similar to 2002," Gustafson said. "We are asking everyone to be extremely cautious when out in the forest and outdoors this time of year."

Stage II includes restrictions on open burning, agricultural burning, campfires, fireworks, smoking outside of designated areas, and operating any internal combustion engine without a spark-arresting device installed and working. Additional restrictions apply to commercial and industrial operators.

The full list of restrictions is available on the Southern Ute Indian Tribe's website at www.southern-ute.nsn.us.

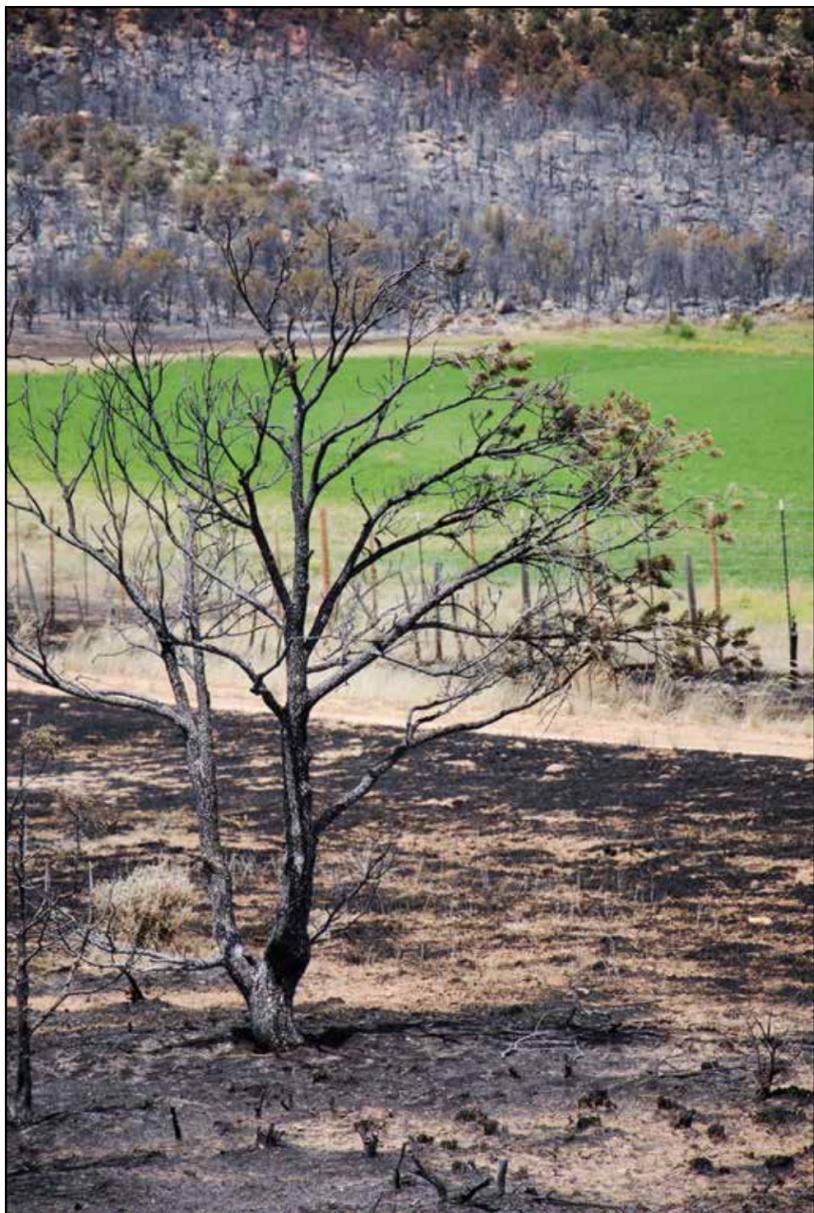

Other local government entities, including La Plata County, the San Juan National Forest and the U.S. Bureau of Land Management's Tres Rios Field Office, have also upgraded fire restrictions since mid-June. Durango, Bayfield, Silverton and Vallecito have announced they will cancel their annual Fourth of July fireworks shows.

More information on wild-fire activity in the area and across the state is available online at www.inciweb.org. The Columbine Ranger District on 367 Pearl St. in Bayfield, Colorado will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday, June 30 to answer questions about local fires.

Vents at the surface near the North Coal Fire have measured approximately 1,400 degrees. The Department of Energy is both testing ways to extinguish such fires and testing ways to capture some of the thermodynamic energy for productive use.

Geologist Kyle Siesser and engineer Bill Flint of the Southern Ute Growth Fund's Department of Energy led a tour on Saturday, June 23 of sites around the Southern Ute Indian Reservation to members of the Four Corners Geological Society. The geologists were interested in methane seeps and coal fires, two environmental concerns associated with the Fruitland Formation underlying much of the reservation.

Ace Stryker/SU Drum

The Soda Springs Coal Fire burns into open air. The fire was successfully extinguished in an October 2011 project that involved excavating the burning coal, cooling it with firefighting foam, and replacing it with a mixture of inert materials.

Ace Stryker/SU Drum

A part of the outcrop that housed the old Martinez mine was the site of an ancient coal fire (right side). Today, methane seepage has killed much of surrounding vegetation.

To minimize the amount of gas reaching the outcrop, Flint said the tribe has converted its monitor wells — placed between producing wells and the outcrop to measure the amount of gas escaping — into interceptor wells, effectively adding a system to capture the gas for productive uses.

The result is the so-called "Picket Fence" system, a line of wells along the inside of the outcrop that yield somewhat less gas than producing wells, but serve an important environmental function: decreasing the net volume of "fugitive" methane emissions.

As a gesture of goodwill, the tribe recently shared the results of a flyover of the outcrop with La Plata County. The county now uses the maps for emergency response and building code purposes, requiring methane mitigation systems in buildings where necessary.

COAL FIRES

Unlike methane seeps, there is little data to suggest a causal relationship between gas production and coal fires, Siesser said. Nevertheless, the tribe has opted to proactively address the problem by experimenting with ways of extinguishing the fires.

There are four known coal fires on the Southern Ute Indian Reservation — all along the western edge of the Fruitland Formation, three of which are still actively burning. The fourth, the 1.3-acre Soda Springs Coal Fire southeast of Marvel, was successfully extinguished in an October 2011 operation that involved excavating the burning coal, cooling it with fire-fighting foam, and replacing it with a mixture of inert material.

The South Coal Fire, near the New Mexico state line, was discovered in spring 1998 and covers approximately 1 acre. In July 2002, the tribe tried to extinguish it by injecting cement into the ground to seal off oxygen inlets. Followup studies revealed that the fire is still burning, but might be contained to some extent.

The biggest by far is the North Coal Fire, which spans approximately 20 acres between the Soda Springs and North fires. The Department of Energy began studying it in 1998 and has since teamed up with Stanford University. The North fire is believed to have been burning for approximately 100 years.

In April 2010, the tribe tested another extinguishment method by pumping 20 tons of carbon dioxide, an inert gas, into the area. While results were promising, the approach was deemed too expensive for a full-scale extinguishment.

A new pilot test being run involves pumping steam into the fire. The Department of Energy is also experimenting heat exchange recovery systems to tap the fire's thermodynamic energy for productive use.

The northernmost fire, the Bridge Timber Mountain Coal Fire, is the smallest at approximately half an acre. No mitigation work has been done there, as decreasing temperatures suggest it could be putting itself out.

KEEP TOBACCO SACRED

We're working to protect the health of all Ignacio residents who may be exposed to secondhand smoke where they work, play and thrive. Even small amounts of tobacco smoke – indoors or outside – can be dangerous, and chronic exposure can cause heart disease and lung cancer.

IHS FOOTBALL

Bobcats gear up for trip Down Under

By Joel Priest
SPECIAL TO THE DRUM

"What is the simplest offense that you have ever run — and actually won a football game?" asks actor Matthew McConaughey, portraying Marshall University head coach Jack Lengyel in the movie "We Are Marshall."

"It's going to be that kind of approach," laughed Kevin Sukut, coach of a squad departing Tuesday, July 3 to Australia's Gold Coast for International Sports Specialists' 2012 Down Under Bowl. "We're only going to get seven practices, and 90 percent of those are going to be about X's and O's. ... The plus thing is that these kids already know how to play football."

The team will see an even more limited number of games: two. But Sukut expects the experience will be one his newest blend of boys — including Ignacio quarterback Adison Jones, receiver/running back Clayton Jefferson, and 2012 graduate/receiver Xavier Watts — will relish for years to come.

"I've been down twice before, in '97 and 2000," the Montana resident said by phone, "and I've been very fortunate to be able to go again. For these freshmen and sophomores, they're going to see the best of the best."

The Bobcat trio will be three of an estimated nine Colorado preps joining nine from Montana and several others from Alaska, Wisconsin, West Virginia and Kentucky.

The DUB format divides all competing teams into brackets of four, with each team playing twice — four 12-minute quarters, with a 15-minute halftime per contest — and following National High School Federation rules.

The outcome of any team's first game will determine whether its second will be termed a consolation or championship game. The

Joel Priest/Special to the Drum

Ignacio quarterback Adison Jones plants a stiff-arm into a Meeker Cowboy during 2011's neutral-site (in Olathe), non-league win. Well in advance of the 2012 season, Jones and two IHS teammates have been selected to play in the 2012 Down Under Bowl in Australia.

27-player Colorado/Wyoming squad faced the former in 2011 after it was edged 14-13 by a six-state (including California, New Mexico and Utah) unit in its opener, held at the Runaway Bay Sports SuperCenter.

Three days later, the crew — skipped by Laramie (WHSAA Class 4A) Plainsmen varsity/JV assistants J.T. Walsh and Clinton Reed — found little consolation on the same gridiron, falling 18-2 to a crew culled from five states (including Texas and Louisiana).

"It's getting tougher to send a team from just one state," Sukut lamented, "and with all the summer camps and workouts going on, it's tough just to get enough interest. And at $4,200 or so, that just makes it tougher. But I still think it's going to be exciting football for the people."

Most recently the boss at Havre (MHSA Class A) from 2005-09 after 15 seasons at little Cascade (enrollment about 140), Sukut was definitely upbeat on working with a fresh, diverse crop of talent. "I've ran the gamut," he said.

"Loved that [eight-man] game, then I moved to Havre where we had about 840 kids there. ... [I've] been able to deal with a wide variety. And it's a good mix; some of the best players in Montana come from these small schools. They have to do everything: play true iron-man football, offense and defense — and I'm sure it's the same down there [in Ignacio]."

"Offensively we're going to have a balanced formation, two-back, but also going to do some one-back and bounce out to some three- and four-receiver formations."

That's something Jones — who will have All-State lineman Jordan Chriske-Hall (from Montana 2011 Class AA champions Helena Capital) among those protecting him — should be able to jump right into, along with two of his top targets from a 4-5 (2-3 1A Southern Peaks) freshman season.

"They'll pick it up in a hurry," Sukut said. "Some of the adjustments we'll just have to make on the fly. Get the ball into the hands of your best guys: That's what it boils down to."

IHS VOLLEYBALL

Volleycat mentors making moves

By Joel Priest
SPECIAL TO THE DRUM

It's back to a brighter bench for former Ignacio volleyball coach Terene Foutz.

But one not far away: She'll still be calling La Plata County home when not helping call shots for Fort Lewis College boss Shelly Aaland this fall. Aaland announced on June 18 that Foutz will be on board as an assistant, officially starting her duties Aug. 1.

"When Terene agreed ... I knew I was getting a legitimate coach with a top-notch resume to add to my staff," Aaland said in an FLC release. "Coach T has a great background in coaching at many different levels and I am excited to have her join my staff."

Also acquired and officially starting work a month sooner will be Stephanie Lathrop, a 1997 grad of Green Mountain in Lakeview, who played her high school ball for both the Lady Rams and Jeffco rival Pomona (Arvada), and then moved on to become a three-year starting middle at FLC ('97-2000).

Of late, she was the leading mentor at Inglemoor High (Kenmore, Wash.; WIAA Class 4A) for five seasons (2005-06, '08-10), recording a 50-38 overall record, and was most recently the volunteer head coach at 5A Gateway (Aurora) since March.

Currently in her sixth season overall — fifth as executive director — with Four Corners Volleyball Club, Foutz (a 1987 graduate of Montezuma-Cortez) had been a college-level assistant once before, from 2000-02 at Mesa State College (now Colorado Mesa University) under her MSC coach Rusty Crick.

Joel Priest/Special to the Drum

Thad Cano (left), last season's varsity top assistant — and JV skipper — under Bayli Stillwell (right), will be taking over as the Volleycats' head coach for 2012.

With now more than 15 years of clipboard clout to her credit, Foutz's experience should pay dividends for Aaland's team, which is expected to return 10 players in 2012. The Skyhawks went 5-21 overall (2-16 RMAC) last year with a youth-heavy squad featuring just two seniors and no juniors.

Foutz's successor at IHS, Bayli Stillwell, now has a successor herself. And Ignacio Athletic Director Melanie Taylor didn't have to look far to find the fellow.

Promoted vertically, the Cats will be led in 2012 by former assistant Thaddeus "Thad" Cano, a man with a resume much longer than most would guess. His previous gig—prior to coming to Ignacio — had him alongside Andy Rice at Pagoza Springs in the 3A Intermountain League.

Cano also had stints in New Mexico with 4A Farmington, 3A (now-4A) Bloomfield, and first began directing play in 1991 at 4A (now-5A) Alamogordo.

Like Foutz, Stillwell — who amassed a 17-45 overall (15-26 against the SJB) record in three seasons — will remain in the game, but from a Durango base. Having taken a counselor's position (similar to what she held at IHS) at Miller Middle School, she will head the Lady Angels' B-team this fall.

Having led MMS's best to the middle-school championship in 2011, lifelong Durango resident Molly Malarsie will step to the prep level and take charge of the Ignacio JV. With a background deeper-rooted in coaching dance, Malarsie has also been pursuing a secondary education major at Fort Lewis, while minoring in sports management.

CHASING A DREAM

SunUte lifeguard laces up for international championships

By Christopher R. Rizzo
THE SOUTHERN UTE DRUM

It's rare to meet a world-class athlete as humble as 22-year-old Gabe Proctor, lifeguard at SunUte Community Center.

It's perhaps equally rare to meet a lifeguard whose true passion lies on land. But Proctor defies expectations often, a trait that has earned him an invitation to Mexico July 6-8 for the 2012 North American, Central American and Caribbean Athletic Association's Under 23 Championships in the 10,000-meter (roughly six-mile) run.

He is currently attending Western State College in Gunnison, Colo. To be a top athlete and to meet his ultimate goal of making an Olympic team, Proctor said he has to choose to focus on just two of three aspects of a typical student's life — academics and athletics — while socializing, in race terms, comes in third.

"I feel that I have been a little over-dedicated to my running," he said. "I would not consider myself a typical college student. But I am OK with that."

Proctor's training typically consists of running between 100 and 110 miles per week, but he's now tapering off in preparation for the trip and is "only" running about 50. Proctor said he feels that training at this altitude gives him a definitive advantage over other runners.

Christopher R. Rizzo/SU Drum

SunUte Community Center lifeguard Gabe Proctor stretches on Tuesday, June 26 in preparation for his training for the 2012 North American, Central American and Caribbean Athletic Association Under 23 Championships July 6-8 in Mexico.

His career path was not always smooth running. Proctor was born in Ethiopia, in a small village of about 1,000 people. The house he was raised in with his mom, dad, younger brother and sister was about 140 feet square.

Proctor's mother died when he was nine, and his father was no longer able to provide for the family. All three siblings were adopted by a family in Maine and became U.S. citizens. It was then that the three chose to stop speaking Tigrinya and concentrate on learning English.

"You can't believe how many times we watched Cindrella," he joked.

He says of his adopted parents: "I owe them the world. Coming here is a dream come true. Whoever raises you is your real parent. They made a way for me in the world."

For this article, Proctor wanted to make sure the appropriate people in his life were recognized, not himself.

"I would like to say, first, thank you to Heather and Greg Riley for opening up their home to me," he said. "My running success would not have taken off in a positive direction if it was not for staying up here in Ignacio. I can't say enough about the Rileys. They are generous and great people. I thank God for the Rileys, and I hope I can give back to them one day."

"I would also like to thank Lisa Allen, my supervisor here at work," he continued. "I get paid well to be a lifeguard. I couldn't believe I got a free lunch and went to an appreciation day."

Barrel racers back in town

By Joel Priest
SPECIAL TO THE DRUM

For the third time of five scheduled, riders from the National Barrel Horse Association's Colorado District 8 competed at the Sky Ute Fairgrounds on Saturday, June 16.

From results submitted by D-8 representative Patti Carlile, there were 60 entries in the event's Open Jackpot division (split into four classes), 23 in the Youth Jackpot and 13 in the Senior.

Twenty-three, split into two classes, also contested the Pole Bending Jackpot.

D-8 action continues July 1 in Durango (a co-sanctioned event with New Mexico's District 1) and will follow with two stops (July 21 and Aug. 11) in Cortez before returning to Ignacio on Aug. 19.

As stated on the D-8 website (<http://nbhaco-08.webs.com>), all races start with time-only runs at 11 a.m. The Open Barrels will start at 12:30 p.m. or immediately following the time-only runs. Open entrants must be entered a half-hour before the designated race time so not to incur a $10 late fee.

The Youth race will follow the Open, with the Senior race to follow. Open entry fees are $40 each, while Youth and Senior entries are $30 (non-NBHA members add a $10 fee). Questions can be directed to Carlile at 970-799-8968 or pcarlile@gte.net.

The 2012 season's Finals will take place Oct. 27-28.

♋ LEO (July 23 – Aug. 22)

OK LIONS ... no more procrastinating about finishing projects you've been putting off. Go ahead, clean out the closets, get rid of unwanted objects, and prepare to enjoy the summer. The blazing SUN returns to your sign on the 22nd filling you with warmth and renewed energy. But MERCURY'S backward dance in LEO might put a damper on some personal plans for the month. As always, be sure to communicate clearly with partners and others to avoid misunderstandings and overly sensitive reactions.

♍ VIRGO (Aug. 23 – Sept. 23)

Just a reminder VIRGO ... MERCURY your personal planet slips into its backward retrograde dance on the 14th and creates its usual confusion. Muddled thinking and delayed plans a part of July's menu. But don't let that prevent you from having your summer fun. All you need do is plan ahead, and check all the details, a piece of cake for VIRGO folks. The bottom line is to be sure and set your arrangements into motion before the 14th. Keep your wits about you on the 18th when MARS takes a stand opposite URANUS and causes tempers to flare regarding monetary matters.

♎ LIBRA (Sept. 24 – Oct. 23)

Feeling Feisty LIBRA? Blame it all on the Red Planet MARS who is entering your sign on the 3rd. No doubt this super-charged energy may be driving you into taking action. Just be careful how you utilize this burst of vigor. Remember ... you are in control. Fortunately SATURN is in your sign keeping you grounded. A positive connection between VENUS and URANUS on the 4th inspires a cheery holiday, and a harmonious time with your partner, and loved ones.

♏ SCORPIO (Oct. 24 – Nov. 22)

Finances and future plans are the top priorities for JULY. Not to worry SCORPIO ... JUPITER and VENUS have your back and will encourage a positive impact regarding money matters. A NEW MOON on the 18th in friendly CANCER promotes promising travel arrangements, and the opportunity to pursue your long range goals. As an added plus MARS forms an agreeable connection to JUPITER on the 17th offering you the chance to improve your monetary situation. Go with the flow SCORPIO.

♐ SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 – Dec. 21)

JULY'S planetary pattern presents a mixed bag of events. For starters, MERCURY in the travel section of your chart pumps up your desire to hit the road, then slams on the brakes after the 14th when it moves into reverse motion. It may be best to make your plans prior to that date. Cover all your bases so that your trip is an enjoyable one. The emphasis is on finances. Meet your obligations quickly Saggies, and organize monetary matters. JUPITER, VENUS, and MARS will do their best to summon up some amusing activities for your enjoyment this month.

♑ CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 – Jan. 20)

PLUTO'S continued influence in your sign is broadened as the FULL MOON on the 3rd releases emotional issues. A powerful celestial pattern unsettles your domestic tranquility when MARS enters into a testy relationship with PLUTO on the 17th, and challenges URANUS on the 18th. They are not the best days to talk things over with your main squeeze, or the kinfolk. It's best to wait until after the 21st to soothe the situation. A bright and lively SUN in LEO on the 22nd opens the door to more congenial communications. Surprising financial options may pop up before month's end.

♒ AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 – Feb. 17)

The celestial planetary pattern may feel more comfortable after the 3rd when MARS glides into like-minded LIBRA. Entertaining activities are uppermost on your list of "things to do". And in all likelihood you will go in search of adventure and excitement. MARS and JUPITER form a vigorous union on the 16th and 17th and increase your yearning to hit the road. Later on optimism sets in and has you feeling like all things are possible again.

♓ PISCES (Feb. 20 – March 20)

Pleasurable pursuits should make your JULY a happy one. Cheerful hours spent with children and loved ones keep you in high spirits. Magical NEPTUNE in your sign offers imaginative ideas as to how to entertain the kiddies for the summer. No doubt you'll think of something original Little Fishes. There's an aura of harmony surrounding your household environment. So while the Solar System is in your favor ... let your inspiration be your guide PISCES people.

♈ ARIES (March 21 – April 20)

Domestic duties and family affairs might dominate some of your July days ARIES. MERCURY'S retrograde on the 14th could offer you the chance to express yourself on a constructive level and give you the opportunity to catch up on some unfinished tasks. You might also explore more pleasurable activities such as throwing a line in the water and snagging a big one. But the best part about JULY is that MARS, your ruling planet, slides into the easy going sign of LIBRA and brings a more controlled excitement to your day.

♉ TAURUS (April 21 – May 21)

A brilliant SUN in CANCER warms relations with neighbors and siblings. Pleasant conversations may turn your thoughts to planning relaxed family gatherings and lively summer cook-outs. VENUS your ruling planet sparkles in the animated sign of GEMINI and promises improvement related to income and finances on the 4th. JUPITER'S hugely beneficial influence becomes even more pronounced as it connects to MARS on the 17th, and URANUS on the 21st. You might even throw caution to the wind and head to the Casino! Good luck TAURUS.

♊ GEMINI (May 21 – June 21)

The SUN in security-minded CANCER may have you thinking about money. #1. How to conserve it, and #2. How to stabilize your future. Fortunately VENUS and JUPITER (the two finance boosting planets) are in your sign amplifying productive income opportunities. You might be working harder, but the rewards are worth it. A NEW MOON in CANCER on the 18th signals a fresh opportunity regarding work. MARS in sync with your sign stimulates many happy hours with those you love the most. Single Gemini folks may find love and romance in the latter part of the month. Keep an open mind Twins.

WHO AM I?

Just a sinner

By Tim Yaw
NUUCIU BIBLE BAPTIST CHURCH

In our last discussion, we found that God created the existence we see today in five days.

On the sixth day, God created man from the dirt of the Earth, then created woman from the man. The man and woman lived in harmony in the presence of God. All animals were tame, and God provided food from the vegetation he created.

Among the vegetation was a tree that provided never-ending life for the couple. There was one tree, though — the tree of the knowledge of good and evil — that the couple was not allowed to eat of.

A created angel of God who became prideful and desired to be above God tempted the woman to eat from the forbidden tree, which she did, as well as convincing the man to eat of it also. This fallen angel, commonly referred to as Satan or the devil, gained control over the man and woman because of their disobedience to God.

They were separated from God, which resulted in an eventual physical death as well as a spiritual death, which is the separation of God we have been talking about.

All humans to this day come through the sexual union of the man and woman and were born with a sin nature that is bent away from God. In other words, people are born prideful with a nature of self-centeredness and self-satisfaction. We strive to be good but are unable to do so completely.

The Bible tells us that no man or woman is good and all have fallen short of the righteousness and holiness of God. Because God can only have a relationship with humans who are as righteous and holy as he is, sinful humans are separated from him.

Even though today we know the difference between good and evil, we are unable to perform the perfect goodness expected by God. We lessen our bad deeds through excuses. Granted, some people are more evil than others, but as we just said, all humans come short of God's righteousness and holiness, which hinders our relationship with God.

This shortcoming is called sin, and it exists within every one of us. Sin has many forms, but our greatest sin is against almighty God in that our self-will and self-interests transgressed and encroached on God's will for his human creation.

The desire of doing our will over God's will is the sin nature we inherited. If this strikes a nerve with you, then you are on your way to recognizing the fact that you are a sinner (as all human creation is) separated from God, and a correction needs to be made.

Let's look deeper into this sin problem and then look at the only solution.

God has put the desire to be good in our soul by way of our conscience, but the temptations of the world inflame the sensual desires of our body, which our soul is unable to control. In other words, the evil desires of our body overpower our soul's desire to do good.

In the Bible, the apostle Paul cites this dilemma perfectly. It applies to all people to today.

"For what I do is not the good I want to do; no, the evil I do not want to do — this I keep on doing. Now if I do what I do not want to do, it is no longer I who do it, but it is sin living in me that does it. So I find this law at work: When I want to do good, evil is right there with me. For in my inner being [soul] I delight in God's law; but I see another law at work in the members of my body, waging war against the law of my mind and making me a prisoner of the law of sin at work within my members [body]" (Romans 7:19-24).

Paul is saying that even though we know the good we should do, the body negatively influences the soul, making it an unwilling servant to sin. Our soul is held captive by the body and its evil, sensual desires.

The first man and woman were formed in the likeness of God, and they originally knew no evil and lived in an age of innocence. When evil was exposed through the temptation from an outside source and they acted on that temptation, they saw the difference between good and evil but were unable to do the good they wanted to do. Suddenly their souls' control over the body flip-flopped and the body then took control of the soul.

Look deeply at your thoughts and actions today and you will agree that your fleshly desires dictate your existence. This is the existence that separates us from God, and unless the problem is corrected, we will spend an eternity separated from God in Hell.

There is nothing under our own effort that can be done. Only God can correct the sin problem within us.

What's the solution? It appears Paul found a savior: "What a wretched man I am! Who will rescue me from this body of death? Thanks be to God — through Jesus Christ our Lord!" (Romans 7:25).

Although the law of sin in the members and the law of the weakness of the soul make us a slave to sin, there is another law that can be put in effect that cancels out these two conflicting laws. It's called the law of the Holy Spirit of God.

Paul continues: "Therefore, there is now no condemnation for those who are in Christ Jesus, because through Christ Jesus the law of the spirit of life set me free from the law of sin and death. For what the law was powerless to do in that it was weakened by the sinful nature, God did by sending his own son in the likeness of sinful man to be a sin offering. And so he condemned sin in sinful man, in order that the righteous requirements of the law might be fully met in us, who do not live according to the sinful nature but according to the spirit" (Romans 8:1-4).

Please heed this, brothers and sisters. The desires of our body crave the sinful things of this world, and no matter how we try to fight it our body wins over our soul. This is why we need help.

Jesus Christ paid our sin debt by taking our sin upon himself and dying for us on the cross. He was buried and three days later God raised him from the grave.

Today Jesus lives and desires to solve our problem by asking us to believe what he did for us, confess the fact that we are sinners, and be willing to let him be lord of our lives. When we sincerely believe this with all our heart, the Holy Spirit of God comes to live in us and change us into a being that is no longer controlled by our flesh.

Gatekeepers: A community-based approach to suicide prevention

"I'm going to walk to the bridge. If one person smiles at me on the way, I will not jump."

From a note left behind before jumping off of the Golden Gate Bridge

Suicide happens more often in La Plata County than in Colorado or the United States as a whole. But it doesn't need to be this way. Most of the time, suicidal thoughts pass away after a period of increased suicide danger. During that time of risk, intervention by trained persons can keep a friend or loved one safe.

That's what "gatekeepers" do. Gatekeepers are volunteers who have completed a two-day training course called Applied Intervention Skills Training (ASIST). ASIST has been adopted by the U.S. military in an effort to reduce suicides among returning veterans from Iraq and Afghanistan.

If you are concerned that a friend, loved one, or even yourself is having suicidal thoughts, we encourage you to contact a gatekeeper. Find a list of gatekeepers at www.sucap.org or call 970-563-4517. It might even be someone you know.

ASIST training of gatekeepers has been organized by Southern Ute Community Action Programs Inc. (SUCAP) and funded by the Colorado Department of Public Health and Environment, Office of Suicide Prevention.

Colorado NRCS announces application cutoff date for 2013 EQIP funding
Deadline is Monday, July 2

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) in Colorado recently announced an application cutoff date of Monday, July 2, 2012, in order to be considered for 2013 funding in the Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP). Submitted eligible applications that are received after July 2, 2012, will be considered during a later time and will be processed throughout the fiscal year as needed. The accelerated timeline for EQIP is intended to provide program participants and NRCS staff more time for quality conservation planning and economic impact analysis. All applications will be evaluated and funded on a watershed basis, with local and watershed workgroup input on conservation priorities. "Over the years, we have seen exceptional support from landowners for the EQIP program," said Phyllis Ann Philipps, NRCS State Conservationist, CO. "This earlier-than-usual deadline allows us to provide better assistance in helping them conserve our natural resources." NRCS continually strives to put conservation planning at the forefront of its programs and initiatives. Conservation plans provide landowners with a comprehensive inventory and assessment of their resources and an appropriate start to improving the quality of soil, water, air, plants, and wildlife on their land. EQIP is an incentives program that provides financial assistance for conservation systems such as animal waste management facilities, irrigation system efficiency improvements, fencing, and water supply development for improved grazing management, riparian protection, and wildlife habitat enhancement. Interested applicants may apply at their local Ignacio NRCS Office located at the Tribal Agriculture Division 655 CR 517, or give us a call 970-563-0178 for more information. Applications MUST be received in your local NRCS Service Center by close of business on Monday, July 2, 2012. USDA is an Equal Opportunity Provider and Employer.
